

The questions you should ask. And the answers you should expect.

If a provider cannot answer every one of these in writing, keep looking.

1. Is this just outsourcing or a call center?

No. You are not buying a service or a ticket queue. You are adding a dedicated, full-time professional who works only for you, inside your systems, on your schedule, as a member of your team. We handle employment, HR and support around them.

2. Will the quality be there?

We recruit every candidate against your definition of a 10/10 hire by an industry-specific recruiter, pre-screened, and presented with a written summary and interview clips. You interview a minimum of three and you decide. If it is not right later, we replace them free.

3. How good is their English?

The Philippines is rated High Proficiency on the 2025 EF English Proficiency Index, 28th of 123 countries and second in Asia. English is the language of business, education and the 1.9-million-person IT-BPM industry.

4. What about the time zone?

Professionals work the hours you need. A Manila day shift lines up with a US night shift, so after-hours coverage is a normal schedule there. Daytime US coverage is equally common.

5. Is my data secure?

Each professional works under NDA on a secure workstation provisioned by ThriveCore, connecting over VPN, exclusively for you. You control access inside your own systems the same way you would for any employee.

6. Who manages them?

You direct the work, exactly as you would with a local teammate. A named ThriveCore manager from our team supports performance behind the scenes with monthly check-ins, monthly reports and quarterly reviews.

7. What if they quit or it does not work out?

We recruit a replacement at no additional cost, for the life of the engagement, under our Zero Risk terms. Retention is our business model: most of our growth comes from existing clients expanding their teams with us.

8. How fast can someone start?

Candidates typically within days of discovery, and a professional in the seat in as little as ten days after you choose. Compare that with a 39-44 day median time to fill for a US hire (SHRM).

9. What does it cost, and what is hidden?

One all-inclusive monthly rate per professional, invoiced bi-weekly: salary, statutory benefits, equipment, IT and management. No upfront, recruiting or onboarding fees, and no cancellation fee. Fully-burdened savings run up to 60-70% versus a US hire, depending on the role.

10. Am I locked into a contract?

No. Month-to-month. Scale up, scale down or stop.

11. Do I need a Philippine entity, payroll or an employer of record?

No. We are the employer of record. We handle HR, payroll, compliance and administration in the Philippines, so you have no Philippine entity, payroll, tax or termination exposure.

12. Will my team and clients accept it?

Clients who treat the offshore hire as a real teammate, with a seat in the standup and a manager who checks in, report the best results. Most customers never notice a difference, and your local team notices the gaps getting covered.
